THE BUILDING

The sky is limitless.

Rooted in Native Hawaiian Culture.

At the Renaissance Residences Honolulu, bold, stylish and experiential design blend with Native Hawaiian mo'olelo, or stories, to create an alluring aesthetic rooted in a sense of place.

Throughout the Residences and Hotel, interior artwork was created by renowned Hawai'i Island designer and cultural practitioner, Sig Zane. His inspiration came from the ko'a, or the traditional fishing grounds of a Hawaiian family.

Not so long ago, 'ohana, or families, would paddle out on canoes to specific spots in the ocean. Once there, they would drop rocks into the water. Over the years, the accumulation of rocks and growing coral provided a sanctuary for small fish. The small fish would attract other fish, and these fishing grounds would provide growth and nourishment for generations.

The Renaissance Residences Honolulu is inspired by the safe haven of the ko'a. Nurturing growth, perpetuating wellness, and providing a dynamic sanctuary from which wonderful things can grow.

To light the way towards the future, it's essential to connect to Hawai'i's past. Sig Zane's beautiful designs emotionally link the Renaissance Residences Honolulu to an authentic sense of place here on O'ahu. From this foundation of respect and knowledge, a cooperative spirit of promise for the future can grow.

"In the 21st century, we continue to honor and respect the ancestors of place. We give rank to the 'ako'ako'a, the coral, the foundation of Hawai'i."

SIG ZANE, SIG ZANE DESIGN

A sanctuary for the senses.
